Hi Everyone,

I am working on a borrowed computer so I do not have access to my own newsletter. I just want to feature a few important things as I know that many Southern California teams are playing down in San Diego this week.

- Make sure that all of your students have their own goggles and encourage parents that want to come into your pits to bring their own as well.
- Make sure that you have all of your shipping paperwork with you.
- Do not forget your team roster and release forms if you team did not submit them on-line.
- Remind students that there is no running in the arena for any reason.
- Invite your sponsors to come see you compete.
- Invite your school administrators to cheer you on.
- Make sure that your teams are still reading the team updates.
- Keep your pits neat to increase safety and be mindful not to invade another teams' pit area.
- I have attached a document that has resources for the Long Beach event. We will have printed ones available at the event as well.
- Reminder that most venues do not allow food or water to be brought in.
- The mini bots proved to be successful in the week 1 event that I was at.
- Keep a back up of your code handy. We had code issues at our event.
- Remind all of the kids and adults that this is a celebration of all of their hard work during the year and especially during build season.
- Have a great event San Diego!

Hope all goes well,
